

Truth, Needing Humanity

To have an illusion to be disillusioned to believe or to deny These have no price nor test in themselves
For all must find reference in truth If truth is only in words or thoughts Who might distinguish imagination from fact?
Who can declare the supposed from the imperative?
Words, then, to be true must have expression Truth must live in certainty in the midst of fire Humanity through its living both personal and corporate must be defined by and verify that which is truth Confirming or denying illusion or disillusion through human living Jesus, saying "I AM the Truth" being the boldest of declarations the ultimate test of mystery Mystery becoming tangible through a shared humanity If not true in humanity purpose in mystery having no case If made precious on earth the mystery of the universe comes humanity expressing divinity Truth becoming in life what truth always was in fact.
